

H. Scholtmeijer

Het Bunschoten-Spakenburgs te midden van de andere dialecten*

Summary

This article deals with the dialect of Bunschoten-Spakenburg (F139, F121) in the north-east of the province of Utrecht. A list of eight characteristics was made, and the spatial distribution of these characteristics was investigated. Of these eight features, only two turned out to be present in the rest of the province of Utrecht. The other six are found in an area east of Bunschoten-Spakenburg, four of them restricted to a rather small zone that consists of the Gelderland Valley and the West Veluwe. These areas, the dialects of which show some striking similarities with south-east Dutch dialects, can be considered as relic areas.